SPECIFY THE ADMISSION SEMESTER AND YEAR FOR WHICH YOU ARE APPLYING (E.G. FALL 2018): ________________________

*NOTE: at this time, the Graduate Neuroscience Training Program and its affiliated degree programs only admit students during the fall semester of each year.

The first year of graduate coursework, laboratory rotations, and program workshops is designed to allow students to become acquainted with three different FAU Ph.D. programs that sponsor advanced neuroscience research and education. FOR OUR INFORMATION, CHECK THE DEGREE PROGRAM THAT AT THIS EARLY STAGE, BEST MATCHES YOUR INTERESTS.

_____ Experimental Psychology

_____ Integrative Biology-Neuroscience (IBNS)

_____ Center for Complex Systems and Brain Sciences

It is expected that applicants will have researched potential Ph.D. supervisors prior to applying. Although direct communication with a particular faculty member in advance of application is not required, a clear understanding of the research of relevant faculty mentors will be important to note in the letter of application. Lists of faculty participants (potential Ph.D. Supervisors) can be found on the program websites.

List the names of up to five, but at least three faculty members whose research best aligns with your interests.
